After much hardship he is sold off to the western regions and becomes a gladiator in the Roman Empire. He must find Princess Sodan, the person he's never been separated from for ten years and the one more precious to him than his own life... A new gladiator is registered in the Plabius Colosseum. His name is Naru, no, Narcissus. He is now a slave gladiator, a captive from a small eastern nation. The trainer Abidos is disappointed by Narcissus's small frame and doesn't even give him a test, sending him off to learn to fight beasts. But when he kills a huge crocodile from Northern Africa with a single blow, he realizes he's misjudged the man. "Freedom... That's what he needed. There's only one way to attain freedom in the colosseum." Afterwards, Naru becomes a gladiator who fights men, not beasts, and piles up many victories. Naru is dubbed the "Pluto of the East" for his rare black hair and undefeated swordsmanship. Rumors about him reach the ears of the crazy emperor Comodus...
