Tracy, a zombie who doesn't die and Vanessa, psycho who cuts others head and takes it like friends. Their bloody pink daily life!

On the first day of moving into a strange town alone, Tracy meets a child who break into her house. A suspicious child who does not know her name, age, any contact information quickly cuts Tracy's head with scissors, saying she likes Tracy. Turns out this kid is a psycho who cut off the head of someone she liked and keep it as a friend.

However, Tracy is a zombie who don't die even if her limbs are cut off. So the little girl rejoices, saying, "If you don't die even if cut your head, then...then we'll be friends forever."

Tracy was surprisingly weak at the child's "I'm lonely. there is no one with me." so, Tracy sympathizes with her and begins to live together.

Zombies, aliens, fairies and witches, and voodoo magic are mixed with their unique colorful art style and having a cult charm.

Pop art-style paintings, which are close to American cartoons, go very well with the cartoons set in Florida. And each episode that unfolds like a sitcom is like watching an omnibus animation.
